

Antycip is taking over NANCO's unit for realtime simulation for the defence market.

Gothenburg, Sweden, 9 July 2004 - NANCO DATA AB, the leading supplier of services and solutions for digital modelling and visualisation, today reported that Antycip is taking over NANCO's unit for realtime simulation for the defence market.

NANCO's business focuses on the core areas of digital modelling and visualisation. The investment is a direct consequence of increasing demand for NANCO's products in the fields of industrial design, determination of design, realtime visualisation, animation and video editing.

Other strong contributory factors are positive development of NANCO's services in the field of training, IT integration and workflow consultancy, above all amongst those customers who are developing products.

An initial step is French Antycip's takeover as from 1 September 2004 of the unit for realtime simulation, which specialises in the defence market. To support customers on the Nordic market Antycip will be opening a Nordic Countries office in Gothenburg.

The change will not affect customers in the field of realtime simulation; support and sales support will be at the same level both before and after 1 September.
